HALO 1978 — Vol. 1
St. Charles High School
St. Charles, Illinois

Each morning starts out with a sunrise, a sunrise filled with new hopes for new days and new beginnings. Along with the first bell at 7:40 a.m. students were faced with scattered classrooms among long, carpeted, locker-lined halls. Once you and your locker partner found your locker (provided you could find your locker partner), it took both of you to lift the stiff lock handles. After four months of questions about where places were, bold signs were put up reading "Admin.", "The Commons," and the special treat of having marked washrooms. And so the new day begins . . .

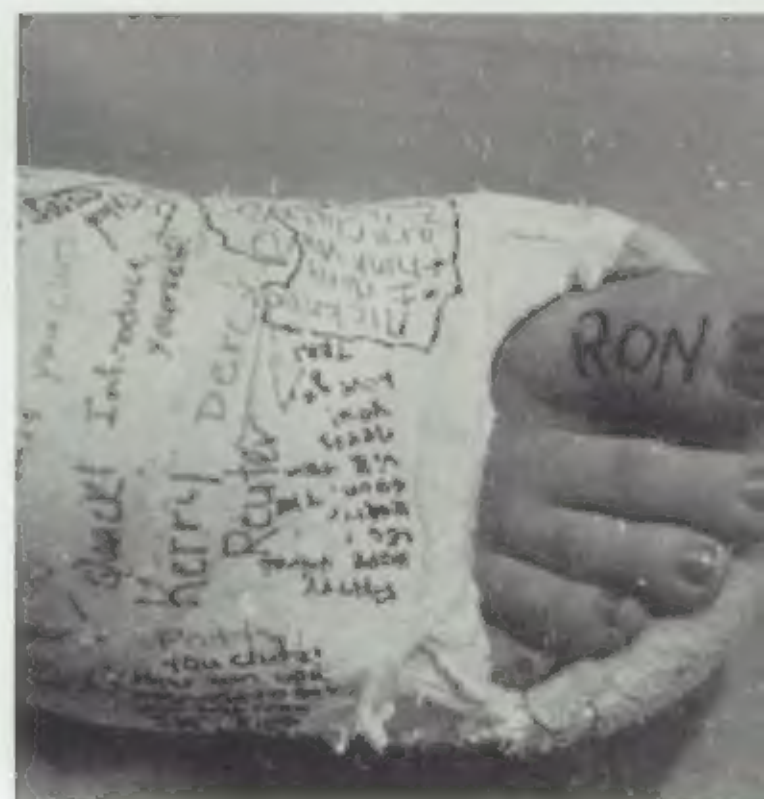

New days . . .

As the sun rises higher, the beams of light enfold one of the first solar-powered high schools, the completed Cultural Arts Center, the swimming classes at the Norris Rec Center, the origin of co-ed gym classes, and a structure housing only a small amount of windows. The three-basketball-court gymnasium was finished late in October, shortly before the grand opening of the Resource Center. The Commons became a star attraction before school and a casual breakfast and lunch room. The Marching Band practiced on a small field until the Band and Choir rooms were ready in November.

New beginnings . . .

For the first year, dance and game tickets, STC jackets, candy canes for "Candy Cane Day," and yearbooks could be found in the booth marked "Student Activities." It was sometimes quicker to take an outside route to a class and the "wind tunnel" provided a breath of fresh air. Parking lots were jammed full and parking permits were a luxury well-cherished, along with a final 2:00 bell. The Jazz Band livened up the Commons one lunch hour, and they added a lot of spirit to all the assemblies. Although we've only just begun, it looks like we made it!

First
for STC

Homecoming was a very wet affair, and the weather changed the tradition of having the queen crowned at the game. The Keg was the scene of Sadie Hawkins, and for the first time there were no honeymoons among the hay for those "hitched" by Marryin' Sam. Couples weren't disappointed for long because Christmas Formal at Pheasant Run provided a chance to stroll down Bourbon St. for a breath of fresh air. "The Dick Eastman Band" played for those attending the Christmas dance, but also had a spotlight at the Prom. "Dick Eastman" was joined by "Horizon" when the bands performed in the West Commons, the unique setting for the special evening of June 3. Along with those starring in the musical "Fiddler On The Roof", we started our own traditions

EVENTS

Stacks of boxes, protestors initiate new building

Although thoughts of the new St. Charles High School brought many fears and doubts, students left summer activities like "pool hopping" and "tooling" Main Street and Mac's and proceeded to school. Along with the change in school buildings came so many other changes that students finally realized the freedom of the old Thompson High School was gone and that this was indeed a new beginning.

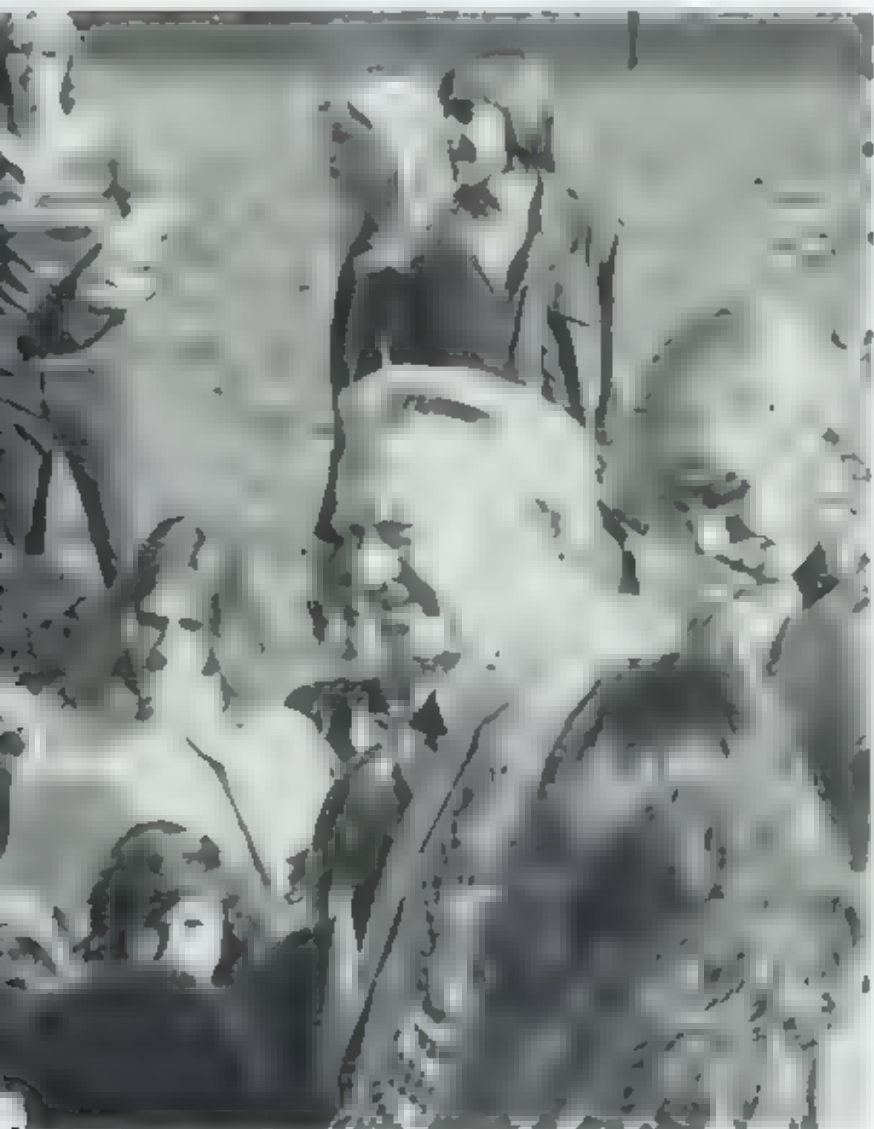

When students entered the building for the first time in September, many things were still unfinished. The resource center, music rooms, and the reading lab (upper left) were uncompleted until November. The attendance system was not decided upon immediately and when it was, some students were unhappy because it required many more visits to the dean's office (lower left). Self-scheduling remained the same and students shared their schedules (upper right) hoping to have classes at least in the same direction as a friend.

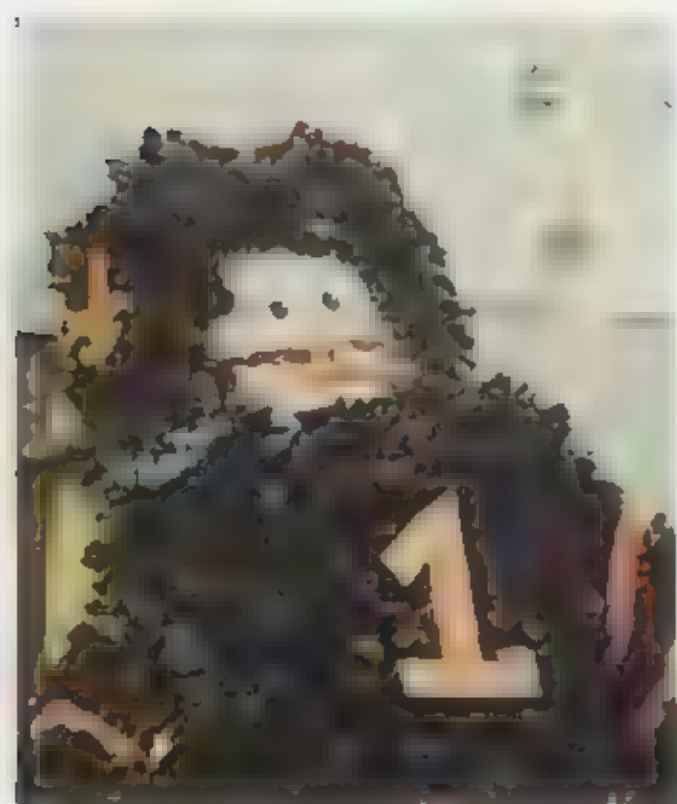

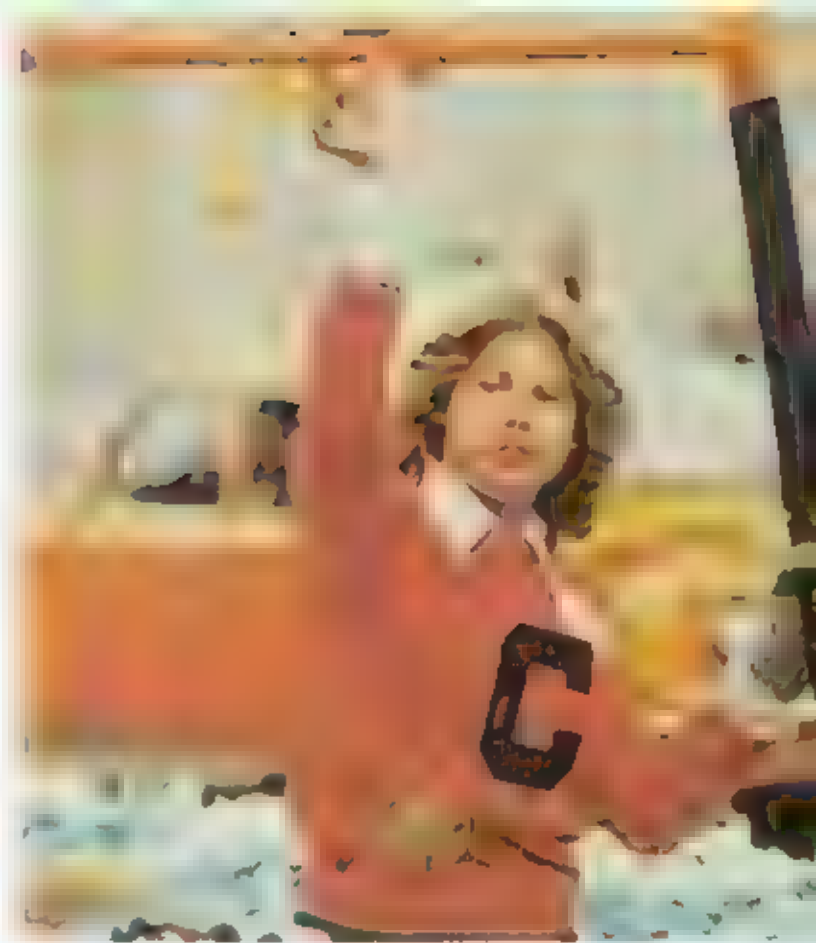

Limited parking, closed campus, the increase in suspensions, and the return of detentions upset many students to the point of causing a student walk-out. Assistant Principal Mr. J. Bannon talked to students during the walk-out (lower left) trying to get them to return to classes, but eventually over 100 of the participants were suspended

Jammed lockers, lack of windows, bulletin boards, and all the other changes which took place did little to alter many students' lackadaisical attitude displayed in study hall in the west commons by senior Dee Dorney (below)

homecoming/hom'-kum'-ing/

According to Webster's dictionary, the definition of homecoming is the return of a group to a place formerly frequented, especially on a special occasion. This definition was especially appropriate for STC since we moved to the new high school and we returned to our old football stadium, Reid Field, to play the Homecoming game. The group of students on class floats, or club cars, in Marching Band, drill team, Flag Rank, the twirlers, clowns, cheerleaders, Pep Club, and other participants in the Homecoming parade were possibly only outnumbered by the large crowd watching the walk down Main Street. Although there was a steady drizzle throughout the afternoon and evening, students faithfully followed the parade up to the field for the pep rally.

Tradition has it that downtown St. Charles turns orange and black during Homecoming week. And it didn't stop this year, top right, spirited Sophomores paint slogans in orange and black.

Decorating athletes' lockers has always been big at STC, and this year was no exception. 'Deberry and Donnelly' were two of many football players and cross country runners to get their lockers "redone." St. Charles defense, above, slip in the mud, but their strategy does not as the game ends without a Tomcat score.

First frosh attend Homecoming dance

Colorful dresses, three piece suits, a good band and lots of smiles all marked the night of the Homecoming Dance. Tradition was carried through once more with flowers, boutineers, parties and also an evening of dining before or after the dance. A few of the favorite places to eat were The Terrace, Fisherman's Inn, The Viking and The Back Door. Some things were new this year at the dance. For the first time the freshman class was invited to attend. Steve Chapman received the honor of crowning this year's Queen, Kim Miller (far upper right). After the coronation was, of course, the Queens dance (left). Kathy Fahey, (above left) Gary Gargano and Kim Polly (far lower left) dance to the music by Max. The band had a good sound and a steady beat and got many of the dancers rowdy and clapping to some of their songs. Max played few slow songs, but the ones they did were readily accepted, as shown by Caroline Woidat and Todd Moffett (far upper left) and Sue Ing and Jeff Hampton (above). The whole evening was, for most, pretty enjoyable as shown on the faces of Kim Labuka and Tim Martin (far lower right). It was most definitely the highlight of Homecoming week, and for many, it won't be forgotten.

Snow and wind halt busses; school closed three days

Kelly Murphy and Jeff Andrews (top right) place crowns of evergreens on each other as they become the 1977 Christmas King and Queen. (opposite page top) Kelly Murphy, 1977 Christmas Queen. (Above) St. Charles gets in the spirit of Christmas by lighting up Main Street. (Top right) Ellen O'Connell, Michelle Murphy and Tami Williams (top left) shuffle their BM cards, trying to get organized for second semester schedule. (Bottom left) Debbie van Overmieren bundles up in hat and scarf joining with the Dr. Team performing Jingle Bell Rock. Getting stuck in snow drifts (bottom right) became a common problem for STC students.

In St. Charles, winter must be the longest time of the year; it seems to extend from November until late April — even longer some days! The colder the weather was in the morning, the longer the bus took to get to your stop, or the farther away from school your parking place became. Winter was more than just freezing weather, winter meant four snow days and many more inches of snow than necessary for those that ski, snowmobile, and ice skate. Mother Nature and her storms didn't prevent anyone from going to hockey games, or watching the STC wrestlers beat Dekalb after 13 years, or cheering at the basketball games and the exciting tournaments! McDonalds was always crowded on the weekends, and the more parties that people threw, the more that were attended. The recreation center pool provided exercise and four-wheel driving became the "thing"

Spirit Week ends with Valentine Dance

It's not usual to see students at school on Sunday but the Sunday before Spirit Week was different. Students from all classes were here with balloons, streamers, and spirited signs trying to capture the pep of STC and competing for the hall decorating contest. The 1978 winners were the sophomores with their hall a vision of orange and black. The annual dress-up days consisted of T-shirt Day, some of the favorites being Star Wars, Farrah, and various colleges. Valentines Day, wearing red and white. 50's Day, with the greasers, red lipstick and ponytails. Sports Day, everyone dressing like his favorite sport, and finally orange and black day. A freethrow basketball contest went on through the week, the winners, senior Tammy Smith and junior Pat Fitzmaurice were announced and awarded a basketball signed by our varsity basketball teams, at a pep assembly on Friday. The week ended with a basketball game and the Valentines Dance on Saturday night; the events may be over but the spirit still lives on.

The Valentine Dance was a big success in the eyes of the students at STC. The Valentine Dance is a very special dance; it's when the girls are asking the guys to the dance which also goes along with the paying of the meal and the price of the dance. Reversing the roles is well liked by the guys who don't have to spend money this one dance out of the year. The band was excellent and of course there was a lot of dancing and everyone looked his best. One of the many couples who attended the dance was Kerry Cavanaugh and Jim Yeck (left) who exchanged smiles as they think of the enjoyable evening. The Valentine Dance every year seems to get larger and larger, more girls get daring enough to ask the guys and the guys don't feel as self conscious anymore to saying yes. With the exception of a few lovers' quarrels, the night was a big success and will be a year to year traditional dance.

Prom held in colourful Commons

For the very first time, Prom coloured everyone's world in the West Commons and Gym. After much controversy, juniors and seniors agreed on the high school as the Prom site. This enabled couples to have dinner at the place of their choice and also gave them a chance to enjoy the June weather for picnics at places such as the Indiana Dunes and White Pines. Reaction to the numerous pink, yellow, green, and blue streamers hung in the Commons was one of enchantment. Bouquets of flowers were spread around both rooms and romantic candles were placed on the round tables set up to allow couples a chance to relax. Beating an old tradition, two bands, "Horizon" and "Dick Eastman," provided a variety of music for those dressed in long dresses and tuxes. As the evening drew to a close, "Colour My World" became another memorable first

'Fiddler' starts tradition

Nearly 200 people were involved with the premier performance in the new Cultural Arts Center. Following the tradition of All-American musicals, "Fiddler on the Roof" was a hit with audiences all three nights

The spring musical, under the direction of Mr. Ron Koepl, opened its three-day run May 4 and nearly packed the auditorium each night

Wayne Wilkinson stole the show with his never out-of-character portrayal of "Tevye." Opposite Wayne was

Lynn Catchpole playing "Golde," Tevye's wife. Becky Adams' solo ballet performance and the Russian Dance segment were highlights of the choreography. Gail Livingston and Suzanne Heinkel highlighted the "dream scene" and amused the audiences with their comical interpretations of "Fruma-Sarah" and "Grandma Tzeitel."

As the curtain came down on the closing performance, ending almost three months planning and hard work, the audience was caught up in the mood of the final scene. There were tears of sadness in the audience and tears of mixed emotions backstage. Afterwards, a cast party was held in the main commons to commemorate a job well done by both performers and director.

CLOCKWISE FROM TOP: Wayne Wilkinson, as Tevye, introduces the culture of Annetevka as the villagers dance behind him to "Tradition"; villagers come together for Tevye's eldest daughter, Tzeitel's marriage to Motel the tailor; The family sings a Sabbath prayer as they gather for the sacred meal. Students receive Awards at Honors Night

The fact that over $15,000 worth of scholarships along with 63 other awards were given away to students from St. Charles High School made Honors Night most memorable. (Right) Senior Class President John Morlock anxiously receives the S A R Medal from Mr. Bannon. John's opening comments accompanied by an enlightening intro, captured the attention of all the guests. (Right Middle) Outgoing Senior Ann DeVilbiss received two awards on Honors night. Here, she proudly receives the Joe Gaffney Athlete of the Year Award which was originally initiated to inspire and promote competition through the participation in athletics. Ann was also presented the Zelda Strecker Award, an art recognition award

Very few seniors attend Baccalaureate Services

Baccalaureate has been known not to draw a crowd or hold a senior's attention for a long period of time. One reason is most seniors don't know what it is. Another is that it has been said to be "boring!" But Father Dan Hermes has reversed some of that tradition after his speech which included the joke about the chicken and the pig. As Father Dan stated, "There once was a chicken and a pig who were going down a road and they came to a sign that read, 'Ham-n-eggs.' The chicken said to the pig, 'Do you want to go in?' and the pig said, 'Well, I'm not sure.' The chicken then replied, 'Oh, come on, it's not that bad.' The pig then answered, 'I don't know, for you it's only involvement; for me it's total commitment!'" For the few seniors who were there, the joke was not only funny, but it was a reference to what would lie ahead in the future years.

Graduation 1978: The end of a beginning

Graduation is a lot more than a cap, gown, and a diploma. It is one more phase of life that starts a new beginning for these students while at the same time is a sad ending of the past years.

The 1978 graduating class was the first to graduate from the new high school. With this honor came mixed emotions. Thompson High had been "home" and a lot of seniors wanted to graduate from the school that they had spent two memorable years attending. But, of course, it was a milestone to be the first ones to exit out of the new school.

Graduation takes one night to complete but many students start celebrating a week before, and on the big night, some of the seniors are not sure if they're coming or going. It takes the senior class a week to practice in order to walk up and receive a diploma, and they are graduating?

Some graduates will go right to work while others will brave another four or more years at a college of their choice. But, one thing is for sure, the Class of 78 will not quit when the roads get rough. For those who have made it through the past twelve years of school we say "Congratulations!" You have left memories and achievements for the up-coming classes to strive toward

Over 2000 of them. Everywhere — at McDonald's, in the Commons, at the various games, in the halls, at the Keg at clusters of lockers, at the drive-in, at the new Foxfield Theater, at work. Many faces in many places. Teachers as well as students participating in pep assemblies, the Donkey Basketball Game, and the Student-Faculty All Star Game. Students spent more time going to and from school, either in buses or in some very "cozy" cars. Any problem was blamed on the "little freshmen" and seniors became restless before "spring fever" set in. Some people spent time getting small with Steve Martin while others learned to disco to the many Bee Gee hits that were popular from "Saturday Night Fever." But then people will be people . . .

PEOPLE

New problems face administration this year

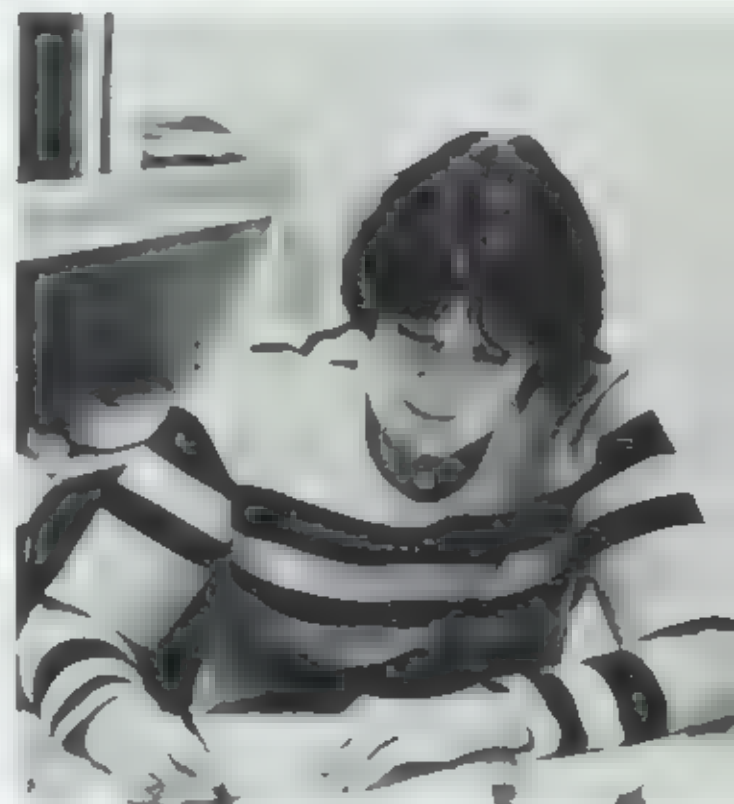

The Administration . . . the big people? No, just people. Mr. Wayne French spent many hours walking around talking to students, matching faces to names, replacing the newness with new traditions, making this high school our High School. Mr. James Bannon was in charge of the division heads and the 120 teachers. Much of his time was spent making himself available to students and parents for questions, complaints, problems and praises. Mr. Robert Wright became popular on the days he arranged pep assemblies and approved parking permits, but the days spent reprimanding students were not Mr. Wright's best days. As deans, Mr. William Armosky and Ms. Jacqueline Wolff also enforced the new rules as well as the old ones. Open invitations to the office were extended in hopes that students would come to know and like (impossible? No.) the STC administrators

The Faculty didn't wait for school to start for the action to begin; a controversy over contracts began in August and wasn't settled until October. Despite this, the 130 faculty members had as many firsts as the students did. Teachers saw three attendance procedures come and go in the first nine weeks alone. Teachers also had the challenge of opening mailboxes with stiff locks and combinations like 1012-218. Triplicate passes made a fleeting appearance, and classroom telephones were installed. A brand new, very noisy faculty room was broken in; and wouldn't you know that the teacher's parking lot was the farthest from the building.

New frontiers

The study of people

Besides teaching five hours each day, teachers were allowed one hour for planning in their new Dept. Offices, and time for playing "Gestapo" in the hallways and study halls. Teachers were asked to advise the many clubs and organizations STC had. It was because of this that students saw teachers in blue jeans working on class floats or driving a bus for a field trip. Extra-curricular activities gave students and teachers a chance to get to know each other a chance to develop friendships that bring graduates back to visit year after year

Frosh here to stay

The freshman class officers weren't identified as Lori Vitali, Andy Gray, Judy Wyatt, and Sherry Szews until two months into the year because of ties in the fall election

These officers came together at the beginning of the year to create a class float. Although they were "totally lost" without an advisor or an idea, the officers held meetings, made arrangements, and built a second-place winning float. The class representatives sold candy to make money for post prom and other class-financed events in the future

They worked under the supervision of advisors Sharon Soper and Margaret Birth to build the morale of the class and to generate a positive attitude among the freshmen.

Freshman Mark DeHart studies slides in Biology I, one of the many electives offered to freshmen this year

Freshmen have just begun . . .

The class of '81 was the first class to go through the new high school for all four years, and the first freshmen in the high school at all since 1963. The common freshman jitters were soon quieted after the schedules began taking effect. Classes this year included 7th hour Algebra I with Mr. Gilmore and his jokes; Mr. DeMaar and 1st hour P.E., ("Why'd we take it so early?"); or 6th hour English with Mr. Koepl, ("Will we ever get over those book reviews?"); and all those days spent in foreign language classes stumbling over verbs, conjugations, and vocabulary quizzes

Weekends were filled with Roundabout dances and movies such as "Star Wars," and "Smokey and the Bandit." Each evening football, wrestling and basketball games ended at McDonald's and occasionally at Pizza Hut. Social groups of freshmen gathered to "munch out" on french fries and a coke, and to exchange gossip about who was asking out whom, and where Joe or Laura were tonight

The freshman home base was located near the orange and yellow lockers near the West Commons where formal study halls were held in "total?" silence.

"The idea of riding a bus every morning makes coming to school that much worse

Big yellows invade

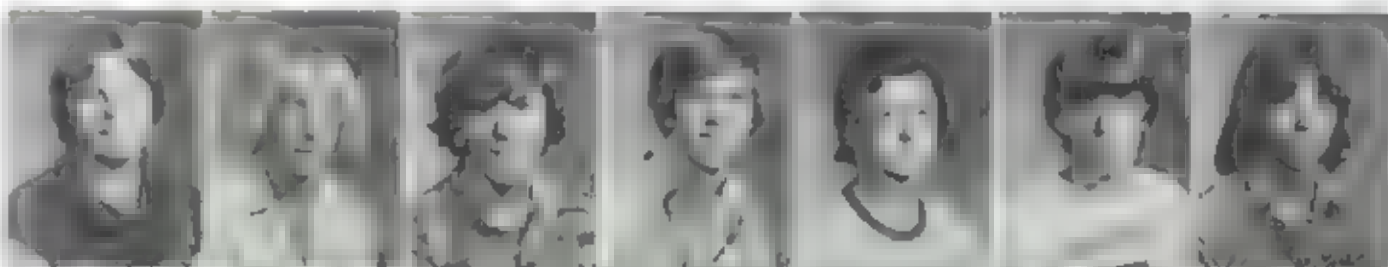

One of the complaints heard even before school started was the problem with busing. But were these problems as bad as we expected? Some comments voiced by freshmen at STC were good, others were bad

Many of us felt that the buses were overcrowded. Others had problems with the buses coming on an irregular schedule. Sometimes these buses came early and sometimes they came late. This caused some of us to miss our bus or to be forced to stand outside in the cold for long periods of time. One student said he thought the idea of riding the bus every morning made coming to school that much worse

But not everyone was upset with the busing situation. There were some people that tried to make the best of things. One freshman student said that he didn't mind busing because, "It sure beats walking!"

One thing's for sure, buses were our only form of transportation in getting to school, and we all tried to make the best of it.

Confused beginnings

When the freshmen were told they had to register for their classes in August, much confusion followed. Advice was received from older brothers and sisters, and many hours were spent trying to get together all day with friends. There was some trouble because they were registering for the first time, and signing up took a little longer than expected, since all 600 freshmen were signing up for the same basic classes. Health, English, math, science, and one or two electives were the basic classes. Some popular electives were foreign languages, personal typing, and art. The freshmen learned one important thing this year: with self-scheduling, it's every man for himself!

Jil McPherson practices her typing during her typing class, a popular freshmen elective

For one week previous and one week after, Roundabout dances were looked forward to and talked about by the freshmen. With the exception of the special dances, Christmas formal, and Farmer's Dance, Roundabout held one dance a month from 7:30 to 10 p m. Most guys and girls came to the dances to listen to the bands like the favorite Mountain Ash, play pool and foosball, sit in the T.V. room or near the Coke machine talking to friends, and possibly even to dance. Most guys and girls didn't take dates to the dances and only a small amount of people were in couples. Most people just went as friends, or just to see other people. Roundabout also held special events such as the hayride in the fall, and trips to the roller rink and to Funway

Opposite page left, Mountain Ash gets into the beat of Led Zeppelin and the Beatles. Opposite page lower right, Foosball was a popular pastime for the students who didn't like to boogie down. Opposite page upper right, As usual the first half hour of the dance is spent gawking at the band, rather than dancing. This page left, The "Chick" doing the busstop is Sue Swanson, while Julie Swift takes pointers. This page right, "You can never get any privacy at these dances," says Mark Hutton and Sandy Stevenson. This page lower Goodbye St. Charles, Hello American Bandstand.

New year, new fads

Once again the leading fashion style was blue jeans, but then aren't they always? Cowl necks, dressy scarves, silk dresses and blouses with bows, three piece pant suits, and crazy socks were a few of the parts put together to come up with the dressier outfits that were popular this year. Stick pins and hair combs became essential, and everyone who was someone owned a brightly colored ski jacket, or STC coat. Corduroy and blue jean Levi's topped by nice sweaters could be seen on the guys and even they were a bit dressier to match the class set by the new school. Big key chains with at least four smaller ones attached held keys to various cars: Mustang II's, Cameros, Thunderbirds, and "Bombers" to name a few. A cross section of these cars could be found parked at parties that were held at least one weekend night, if not two. Open house parties were attended basically by large groups of friends.

Lockers: the reflection of your personality

At the end of the day, students dash from their own lockers to those of their friends. The locker is a very social area, especially before and after school. A freshman locker isn't as tall or wide as the other lockers in the school, so fewer lockers are decorated with pictures, slogans, posters or knickknacks. A few people still managed to squeeze in such items as "this area is a toadal mess" written on the picture of a frog, or a little poster of a globe with the saying, "Wouldn't it be fun to stop the world and watch all the people fall off?!" Charlie's Angels, Sylvester Stallone, Peter Frampton, the Boyzz, and Kiss were a few of the popular stars found in lockers this year. A favorite practice among the class of '81 was to put up pictures of their good friends in their lockers, or to put up a photo or two of their latest "honey. Around Christmas, the freshmen got into the spirit by hanging up Christmas ornaments and candy canes from the hooks inside their lockers. Seasonal sports' pictures, hockey and basketball being highlighted, and clippings from the Chronicle also found a place hanging in these 77-'78 homes-away-from-home

Foxfield fever entertains St. Charles High

What goes together better than a hamburger and a Coke? Friday nights and movies, of course! One of the favorite pastimes of the STC freshmen was to buy a box full of popcorn and hit the late show after a rockin' Roundabout. Say the name Darth

Vader and R-2 D-2, and the frosh think of the highly acclaimed "Star Wars" with its spectacular special effects that kept most people laughing. Some of the other favorites were "Smokey and the Bandit," "Oh, God," and "The Deep" (The guys loved Jacqueline Bisset in her wet T-shirt, and the girls drooled over Nick Nolte's deep tan and nice muscles!) If you were sly and could sneak in, or if you just looked like you were seventeen, the favorite R-rated movie was "Saturday Night Fever," with John (Barbarino) Travolta which started a disco fever of its own in St. Charles. The completion of the new Foxfield Theaters on Dunham Road was another beginning for us, and it entertained all with the latest and greatest movies of the year. The movie-lovin' freshmen are bound to keep the theaters in business for a long, long time.

Super Sophomores

Just about everything was in a state of confusion this year. One of the most confusing things about it was the election of the sophomore class officers. It wasn't until well into the year that the tie between the vice-presidents was resolved. The officers were finally announced as Scott Clancy, president; Suzanne Dawson, vice-president; Jenni Hauser, secretary, and Liz Smith, treasurer. This year the class officers helped with the organization and building of the class float. The float was good enough to win first place in the Homecoming class float competition. The sophomore class raised money for post-prom, which they were also in charge of putting together. They tried to increase the school pride as well as raise the class spirit, but the main goal of the officers was to make this one of the best years ever for the sophomores

Dating: a time to grow

"Be home by twelve." This is the familiar saying sophomores at STC so often hear. Entering into the world of dating, the sophomore years can be an exciting time. The upper class boys start taking an interest in the sophomore girls, making the soph guys feel left out in the deal. Kegs are popular as the sophomores can go now for the first time.

Homecoming and Christmas formal are big dances and a new experience for dating sophomores. Movies are frequented and McDonald's is as important to the sophomores as it is to the upperclassmen. The only problem the sophomores have found in dating is the lack of transportation. Because licenses aren't usually gotten until the end of the sophomore year, the sops have to rely on their parents for rides. Sophomore year is a time for growing and starting relationships in the dating scene. Many will agree it's a lot of fun!

Driver's education: one step closer to freedom

Taking in a movie in Aurora and hitting the away sports events are fun — if you have the transportation. Sophs at STC are anxious to get their driver's licenses, a ticket to more freedom. Asking older brothers or sisters or parents for rides is okay once in a while, but it isn't very good for dates. So, until they drive, they take advantage of the exercise and walk, and they take the pep bus to games. The driver's ed. program at STC is a semester course with indoor and outdoor classes at the same time. Many sophs complain they don't get enrolled until well after they are 16. Some choose to take driver's ed. commercially which enables them to receive their licenses sooner. The anticipation of getting a license is great, but the waiting makes it more worthwhile when it finally does come

Parental discretion advised

Of the three main media types the one that everyone participates in is television. This activity, since it takes practically no effort at all, is quite popular at STC. The popular shows on T.V. this season ranged from cartoons to parental discretion shows that appeared late in the evening. Other highly rated shows were comedies like Welcome Back Kotter, about a school teacher and his difficult-to-teach students, the Sweathogs; variety shows like Saturday Night Live, with the Coneheads, Emily Litella, and Samurai Dry Cleaners making us all laugh; and the soap operas, All My Children, Ryan's Hope and The Young and the Restless topping the list. Evening viewing had quite a few shows that got good ratings. A few that we'll always remember are Three's Company, about two girls living with one guy, Happy Days (who can forget the Fonz?), Charles Angels (weren't the guys upset when Farrah left the show?); and a new show satirizing soap operas called, of course, Soap. Even with all the homework STC students have to keep them busy, they will always find time to watch T.V.

Funway 'tilts' Saints

Funway had a facelift! That's right, the amusement place in Batavia, just fifteen minutes away from St. Charles, took on a new, better look this year which attracted the sophomores as well as the rest of STC. Pinball, foosball tables, go-carts, bumper cars, and Funway's latest addition — the roller skating rink, kept the students of STC busy on weekends, after school, or whenever they had the urge to "TILT" on Captain Fantastic, or let out their anxieties by bumping the daylights out of each other on the bumper cars. Funway does put a little dent in the pocketbook, because everyone knows that when you play one game of pinball, it's hard to stop. But that never stops anyone, because once they've started, they have to keep going until they beat that machine. Funway is one challenge that everyone loves!

Breakfast, lunch, candy bars, and . . . study hall?

What does chowing down on a nutritious lunch and studying for a 3rd hour American Lit. test have in common? It's simple. You did both in the commons. Whether it was the main commons or the west, there was always something going on. There was usually something being sold every day in the commons. Party lines, yearbooks, and cookies were just some of the things that AFS, Co-op,

Student Congress and other student organizations sold in the commons during the year. The main commons is the only room in the school that has more than two windows, where students can look out to see if it really is snowing, or if it's only a rumor going around the school. Before school, students flocked to the commons to find friends, finish homework, eat breakfast, or just to have something to do. At first, decorations weren't allowed in the commons. But, after students were allowed to decorate it, the commons really became the place to be.

Juniors Kurt Sundberg and Rob Kohlhaben take time out from studying to have breakfast in the Main commons

Lose, lose, lose . . .

It seems like high school kids are always worrying about their weight, and it's usually the thinnest people who are on diets. People having just an apple or a cup of yogurt for lunch became a familiar sight in the commons, as more and more people joined the crowd of STC dieters. Liquid protein diets became a fad among the weight lifters and other athletes this year. More common ways to lose weight were by starving yourself for as long as possible, or by going on a liquid diet. The liquid diet is when you don't take in any solids at all, and you live on liquids only. Diets were around all year, except on Friday night trips to McDonald's, or those New Year's Eve parties. ("I'll start my diet on Saturday.") Exercise was a big help to those trying to lose weight, and gym class was one good way to burn off a little unwanted fat. The Rec Center swimming pool, racquetball, tennis, and weight room all provided methods of controlling weight. Tuesday nights at Delnor brought together members of the Weight-Watchers to help each other in the never-ending battle of the bulge.

Saints will rock you!

"We Will Rock You," a popular rock song by Queen, was transformed into an even more popular cheer at STC. This was the chant that brought Saints fans back into the spirit that was lacking for a while. Although students were basically uninvolved in school activities at the beginning of the year, as the year went on, STC students began participating in school events and clubs. The first pep assembly in the new gym helped spirits rise, and then the feeling of "togetherness" started growing. With cries of, "We're number one!" Saints fans tried to raise the roof off the gym during pep assemblies. Clubs worked on events to make St. Charles a more spirited school, and the bleachers were finally filled at the games. Pep Club decorated the commons and halls with orange and black streamers and posters, and soon the pride that was missing began to develop into the pride and spirit that STC is known for.

Rings — our memories

Whether it's aquamarine or blue spinel, white gold, yellow, or sterling, with the crest or without, cut or smooth, class rings are one of the highlights of the sophomore year. With the excitement of ordering the rings in December, the sophomores run around looking at the upperclassmen's rings trying to decide which one is right for them. And when the rings finally arrive in the spring, the excitement is obvious in the sophomores as they examine each other's rings. The tradition of boyfriend and girlfriend exchanging rings leaves the girl wrapping colorful and fuzzy angora around the much-too-large boys ring to fit on her finger. Class rings are a part of growing up, and a big part of high school. They hold many memories you can keep for the rest of your life.

Wanted: part time job

Most sophomores, since they are only 15, don't have regular jobs. The few that do work are working part time after school and on weekends. Most stores require their employees to be at least 16 and this is a problem for 15 year old sophomores who wish to work. Students under the age of 16 who want to work must have a permit signed by their parents and a counselor, giving their permission to work, and agreeing to the hours given. Some of the jobs that sophomores occupy themselves with are dishwashing and bussing tables in restaurants, stock boys or clerks in clothing or drug stores, babysitting, and any other job that doesn't require one to put in a full day's work. So, until they are 16, most sophomores prefer not to work, and the few who do only work part time to have a little extra spending money.

Drill team's enthusiasm keeps up Saint spirit

The drill team consists of sophomores, juniors, and seniors who tried out back in May of '77. The squad split up over the summer and went to different drill team camps to get ideas for routines. Illinois Wesleyan University and Aurora College were the main camps visited over the summer. As the season opened, the drill team marched with the band at the pre-game performances and during the half-time activities. During Homecoming, the drill team marched through the rain up main street to Reid Field where they participated in the pep assembly with the rest of the school. As the basketball season came around, the drill team performed at half-time to the tunes of "It's a Miracle", "Rocky" and others, as they entertained students, parents, and STC fans. During the year, they sold candy to raise money for new uniforms, and this year's competition. They also decorated halls and lockers before the games with the pep club. The drill team proved to be a big boost to the spirit and fun at St. Charles High.

Classes keep sophomores busy, busy, busy . . .

The beginning of the school year brought confusion, excitement, and a little bit of fear among the sophomores. The combination of a new school, first year of high school, and self-scheduling are enough to bring on any of the feelings mentioned above. But things weren't always that bad. They began to settle down as the year wore on. Sophomores almost looked forward to going to class. Especially the electives sophs had to choose from like geometry and chemistry, two of the more popular electives this year. And then there were the required classes like swimming ("What am I going to do with my hair?"), or Comp. Skills ("Another spelling test?")

All in all, it was a pretty good year, and one that the sophs won't soon forget

Sophs float to 1st place

This year brought a lot of new experiences to the class of '80. One was the construction of their first class float. When word of the upcoming competition finally got to the sophomores, they had less than a week to plan and build their float. When the plans for the float were finally finished, there were only four nights left to build it — the first of which was spent trying to find a hay wagon to build the float on. When they located one, they all piled into the back of a pick-up truck and set out to try to find the farm. The nights that followed had a lot of problems: like how to hide the float from the other classes, and just how to make a cloud out of a hay wagon. Once they got going, it really wasn't as hard as they thought it would be. The float, finally finished the night before the parade, was ready to roll down Main Street. The sophomores must have done something right. Their entry of a Saint football player floating on a cloud placed first in the Homecoming class float competition, beating all the other classes. And that's not bad for a first attempt!

Mac's, movies, and pizza fill up spare time

Well, there it was another boring night and you had nothing to do; at least that's what you thought. But there were lots of things you could have been doing besides sitting home watching T.V. A lot of kids went to Mac's for a quarter pounder, coke and fries after taking in a flick at the Arcada or Foxfield. Another popular way to spend the evening (as well as your money) was going over to the bowling alley to bowl a few games. After that, pizzas from Mr. Tom's were next on the agenda. Another thing to do was shopping. If you wanted a good selection of things to buy, you went over to Fox Valley in Aurora. There are a lot of things to see there, and it's much better than sitting at home. During the school year, there wasn't much spare time, but the time STC students did have was spent doing lots of exciting things

Many students spent spare hours at Foxfield theater taking in the latest movies

Junior life at STC

Under the leadership of President Jeff Elliott, Vice-President Nan Davis, Secretary Deb Maren, and Treasurer Carol Monteleone, the Junior Class achieved the goals and hard work that was required of them this year.

Although their Homecoming float didn't place, the "green blob" was a winner in the eyes of the Juniors and they didn't let the disappointment get them down.

The officers had a rocky road to success when it came to Prom.

Their main opposition was the Senior Class, but after two surveys and a cancelled contract, they finally could work together.

The Gong-Talent Show was a big money raiser and along with a dance, bake sales, and selling bumper stickers, they accumulated enough money to transform the gym and put on a memorable prom.

Caution: habit-forming

Warning: reading novels may be habit-forming. As many STC romantic-novel junkies know, this warning should've appeared on all of these books to warn the reader of its dangers. Once you read one book, there was nothing to stop you from reading more, and more. You found yourself going to Grimm's after work on pay-days, spending hours in aisle 4 examining the many best-sellers for that week.

"Love's Tender Fury," "This Loving Torment," "Dare to Love" — the titles assaulted the senses, but the novel junkie loved it, and tried hopelessly to decide which book to buy this week. Even though some of the books were a little "racey," they still sold like hotcakes.

The halls at STC were filled with talk about the books. "Did you finish 'Wicked Loving Lies' yet? I just knew they'd get married at the end . . ." They were all alike. Guy meets girl — they hate each other, and then the hate turns to love. You knew how the story would end, but it was still fun to read the book.

Although there wasn't a known cure for the novel-reading addicts, most of the sufferers found it best to indulge in their habit, until they could finally get it out of their systems.

Lack of parking space creates problems at STC

'My parents are going to let me drive to school next week! Now, if only I can get a parking permit . . . " Sound familiar? To most STC students, owning a parking permit was only a dream

The moving of the high school across town created many problems, one of which was the lack of parking spaces

At the beginning of the year, only students in co-op, with a few exceptions, were issued parking permits. While some students solved the problem by riding with friends, others drove to school anyway, hoping that "they" wouldn't check for permits that day. But the remainder of students solved the problem by riding the "popular" big, yellow school busses to school every day

School can be fun . . .

Classes. It had never been a popular word at STC, or any other high school for that matter. It rated way up there with other words like studying, homework and learning. But as juniors, students had a chance to take more electives, which made their classes a little better, since they were taking fun classes they picked themselves.

Co-Op was offered to juniors, and many students took the opportunity to work at their jobs during school hours. Business Law was another popular elective this year. Business Law students held mock trials which enabled them to see how trials are run, and to actually participate themselves. Whether it was algebra, chemistry, art, or music, electives at STC made junior schedules a little bit easier to cope with, and possibly even made school fun for a change.

Powder Keg keeps STC rockin', rollin' and more

With the move of the high school across town, students were no longer able to hang around Keg during their lunch hour. The last time, however, was made up on weekends, when once again the Keg sponsored after game dances. Dancing to the tunes of bands like "Streakin'", Keggers found a good way to dry off after a wet game.

This year's Keg officers worked hard on special dances. The can dance, disco dance, and Senior Night were just a few of the special dances held this year at the Keg.

The Keg had always been considered a "worthwhile organization", but this year, more students came to realize that Keg was also essential to life at STC.

Blizzard burys STC

The winter of 1978 was nothing compared to Antarctica, but those who weathered it may tell you differently. Even though Old Man Winter was replaced by the far gentler productions of spring, everyone was still talking about the snow.

Winter, which officially ended its three month engagement March 20, produced plenty of statistics, but not too much popularity. There were days when the snow drifts caused confusion in the streets, and school was called off for three days because the busses couldn't run. On December 8, the first major storm dropped nearly eight inches of snow and left 200 schools closed, while zero temperatures numbed the city. The heaviest snowfall came in the early hours on Christmas Day, giving us the "White Christmas" many dreamed of. But the rest of the winter was something no one ever dreamed of. Sixty-one more inches of snow fell on the city bringing the winter's total to 81.4 inches, 42.1 inches above the normal snowfall amount.

No one is crying because the winter of '77-'78 is over. We made it through, but no one is quite sure how

'They've got little hands, and little eyes . . .'

"That guy is so short . . . (how short is he?) he's so short, that he has to stand on his toes just to put on his hat!" To many people at STC, the above joke was far from funny. These people make up the population of the school known as the "short people."

Randy Newman's popular song, "Short People" brought many laughs to STC, and it also started a 'short people' craze in St. Charles. Whenever a not-so-tall person would walk by, shouts of, "Short people got no reason to live!" would be heard throughout the halls. But it was all done in fun. After all, everyone knows that good things come in small (short?) packages!

Now playing: the drive-in Movies were a big part of STC life this year for all the classes Freshman through senior — everyone enjoyed Saturday Night Fever, and Close Encounters of the Third Kind. But there was one difference between the underclassmen and the upperclassmen — transportation. Cars enabled the upperclassmen to travel the few miles out route 64 to the Cascade Outdoor Theater. On Friday and Saturday nights when there wasn't Keg or any parties to go to, the Cascade was a good place to find STC students. Everyone usually went together to the theater, and usually parked near each other, too. There was the normal running back and forth between cars, turning on and off of headlights, and other teenage rowdiness. And no movie is complete without popcorn and something to drink. Of course, there is a refreshment stand at the Cascade, but most kids preferred to bring their own refreshments to the movie. The drive-in was a fun part of STC and many underclassmen look forward to the fun to come next year.

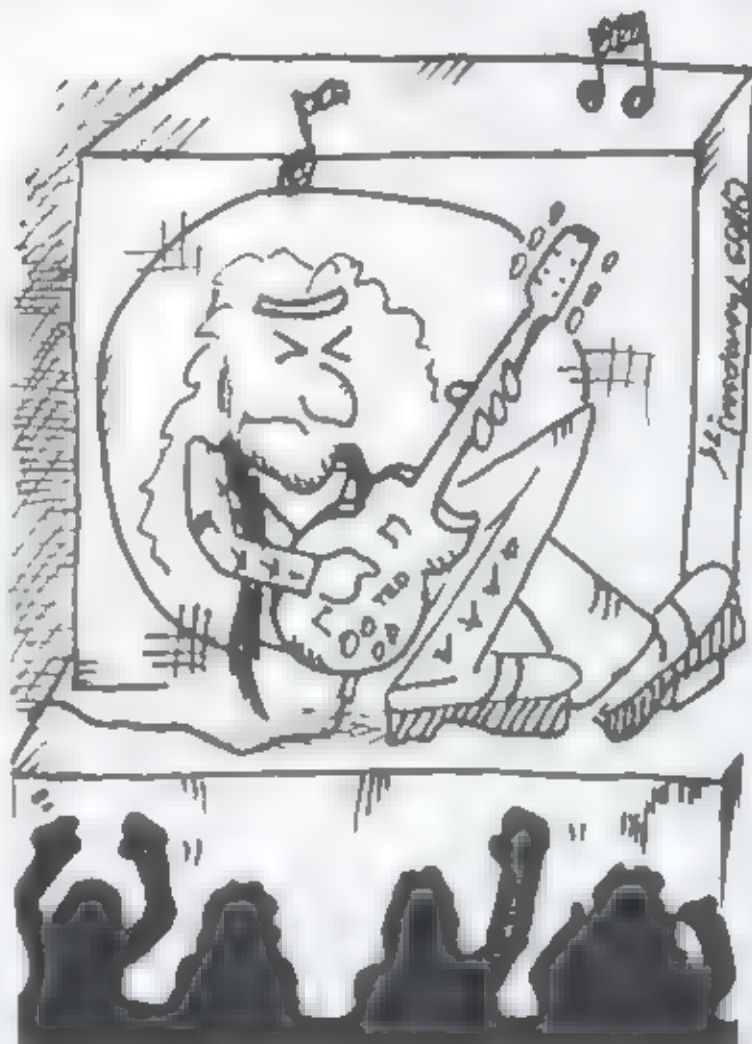

Saints 'rock' at concerts

The lights dimmed. A sudden hush came over the crowd. A voice, seemingly out of nowhere, was heard. "Ladies and gentlemen . . . CHICAGO!"

To many STC students this experience was a reality. Concerts at the Chicago Stadium or Alpine Valley in Wisconsin, were visited frequently by St. Charles music fans. Chicago, Foghat, Genesis, Bob Seeger, and Ted Nugent were just a few of the groups that played in Chicago this year.

Eric Clapton was another star that played in Chicago in 1978. His new album, "Slow Hand" had just come out, and he was in Chicago on tour promoting it. Most students who saw Clapton in concert really enjoyed it, and rated it as, "excellent."

Transportation once again proved to be a problem for the sophomore and freshman music fans. But, older brothers and sisters and older friends helped in solving the problem. Everyone was able to enjoy the excitement and fun of going to a live concert

STC: button-pushin' crazy

INV, log, 0 through 9, these are all part of the calculator. During the past years, calculators became a familiar sight at STC. Calculators were an easy way to speed up work in school. In science or math class, it was a sure bet that someone had a calculator with them. Some people owned expensive calculators with so many buttons, one needed a four-man-team just to use them. Others had your basic calculators used to add, subtract, multiply and divide. Calculators were carried in everything from a box to a blue jean case. People kept them in their lockers, purses, and even a few 'brains' kept them attached to their belt loops

Fleetwood Mac . . .

The '77-78 school year was a good one for music. Fleetwood Mac, Ted Nugent, and Foghat topped the list of popular albums this year. Steve Martin's "Let's Get Small" comedy album was another hit at STC. No one will forget his "Smoking" sketch, ("Hey, mind if I SMOKE?") or his famous "EXCUSE ME!!" line which were both on the album. The biggest selling album of the year was Fleetwood Mac's "Rumors." Songs like "Second Hand News" and "Don't Stop" entertained STC students at Keg and at home. Along with albums, came the necessity to buy a stereo. Headphones became an important part of the stereo, as parents continually screamed, "Please, turn down that NOISE!!" But, whether it was Steve Miller Band's "Book of Dreams" or a commercial-free hour on WKQX radio, the reply was always the same. "That's not noise, Mom. That's MUSIC."

. . . and others treat the ears

Gong show provides laughs and money for STC

The sound of the gong was something that contestants of the 1978 Gong Show feared. The show, which was presented by the junior class was a big hit at STC. Acts ranged from vocal solos and dances to a "Barber Shop Quartet". One of the more popular acts was a fiddle solo by Wayne Penn. But the real show stopper was the pom-pon routine performed by STC's own lovely legged "lady-killers." If you weren't being entertained by the unusual acts, or by the music of the band "Manus," there were emcees Ralph Becker and Wally Sanborn to keep you laughing. The "celebrity" panel of judges consisted of teachers Ray Rogina, Tom Haymond, and Dawn Anderson. When the show was over, and the decision of the winners was made, there was a tie for first place between Cindy Sommer and Dave Hunt, both of whom sang solos.

The most outrageous act, voted by unanimous decision, was the pom-pon routine. The show was put on as a money-maker for the junior class to finance prom, and there was quite a turn-out. If people wanted to get a good laugh, and see some pretty good entertainment, the 1978 Junior Class Gong Show was the place to be.

Painter's pants and combs — the inseparable pair

What are those things in everyone's pockets? Everywhere you looked you could see them — combs. The comb had been a necessary piece of equipment for years. They came in all shapes, sizes, and colors; if there was a color you liked, you could bet there was a comb to go with it. With the arrival of the painter's pants, there weren't any painting sticks in the side pockets, but combs. The most popular kind of comb was the "Goody" comb. Anyone who was someone had a "Goody" comb. To some people being without a comb was an unbearable torture. It was definitely an essential part of high school living.

Hangin' out at Mac's

To many STC students this year, McDonald's became part of their weekly routine, as kids filled the restaurant, without fail, after games, Keg dances, and parties. Even those not hungry could be seen pulling into the "Golden Arches Country Club," only to enjoy the company of others, and later be asked to leave by the security patrol, sometimes referred to as "Rent-a-Pigs."

The lone McDonald's of St. Charles ranks in the top five per cent of money makers of the 4,200 outlets in the U S and Europe today, and it's a money maker for many students who started their working careers at McDonald's

Some crew members feel "it gives you a chance to meet a lot of people and see your friends on Friday and Saturday nights — even if you are working." And Friday and Saturday nights were the big nights for McDonald's, as lines formed at the counters, kids crammed into booths, and cars filled the parking lots, even more so than last year

It seems that the move of the high school across town has effected daytime business, especially during lunch hours, but has not had much impact on the week-ends

Just what is it that attracts so many people to the home of the golden arches? "Hamburgers," says Kit Sweeny, '78 "People," says Craig Livingston, '78. Not only do the triple-thick shakes and crispy, golden fries draw students to Mac's, but the socializing and bumping into friends encourages people to "take a break today"

Parties at STC

Whether it was a gambling party, a chips and coke get together, or a beer bash, parties played a large part of most STC students' Friday and Saturday nights

When there were no sporting events or dances, rarely did a weekend go by that someone didn't take advantage of the folks' being away and had everyone over for an evening of drinking, dancing, and socializing

These weekend events often shaped the social lives of many students. Whether it was meeting new friends or a new "flame," hardly a party went by that did not mark new acquaintances being made or, at least, new opinions being formed

While couples enjoyed "party-hopping," parties were usually attended by "the girls" or just "the guys" out searching for some way to spend the weekend. Before any further attempts were made to locate the "shindigs," a quick stop at Macs was essential — the party-location headquarters of St. Charles often supplied students with a list of gatherings to keep them going all night

As high school days come to an end, it is not the attendance procedure or the bumpy bus rides home that will be remembered, but, rather the memorable parties attended and the eventful weekends enjoyed as a student of STC

College seminars

Choosing the right college was one of the hardest decisions a senior had to make. Trying to decide where to go was almost impossible just by looking at the pamphlets and information seniors were bombarded with in the mail.

To help students make a selection they would be satisfied with for the next few years, representatives from colleges all over the country came to talk with interested students at STC High.

For some, going to one of these sessions was just a way to get out of class, but for most the information they received helped them to understand the programs that the different schools had to offer.

Although these sessions were rarely a senior's only basis for choosing a school, they often helped to convince students that a particular school definitely was or was not for them.

Drive the Four-Wheel Way

'It's either four wheelin' or no wheelin' commented Senior Scott Horton, whose attitude was shared by many STC students who considered their four wheel drive trucks (FWD's) a major essence of life

Four wheelin', as it was typically known, consisted of a group of guys going out in their FWD's and trying to conquer the hills, curves, creeks, and jumps that stood in their way. Spring was a favorite time to go because four wheelers felt the more mud they could get on their trucks, the better it looked. Senior Mark Mehalic attested to that fact when he said, "When I hear the call of the wild, I have to go four wheelin' I love mud."

The Windings, the Far Forty, and the quarry were among the favorite places to go four wheelin'. But open fields or a muddy clay satisfied many four wheelers. Senior Tom Read simply said, "I love field hopping."

Four wheelers drove their FWD vehicles to school and wore John Deere type farmer hats at all times. But the only typical thing about the four wheelers at STC High was that they were untypical

Seniors grow restless

The 1978 graduating class of STC High School started experiencing a certain feeling during their final year; a feeling of restlessness, uneasiness, and anxiousness. Some call it the need to graduate, but most call it Senioritis.

Seniors in high schools all over suffered from this common disease. One of the first symptoms was the need to get out of school as soon as possible.

Some found a cure for this by graduating early, but most stuck with it and graduated with the rest of the class.

In previous years, cutting class had been a big help to most victims of this "bug." But because of a class-cut crackdown and closed campus, only an assorted few still used this method as medicine.

More and more every year, seniors are said to have Senioritis worse and worse. Maybe in a few hundred years there won't be such a thing as Senioritis. It could be a continuing thing forever, and anyways what fun would it be not trying to stop the unstoppable and famous Senioritis disease

Cars: freedom

Wanting clothes and "beer" money were just a few of the things that led students to find jobs. Having a job led many to making their first big financial investment — a new car.

Although most cars weren't actually new, in the owner's mind, the "beaters" looked and ran as well as a new Corvette.

Cars were a sign of prestige in many students' eyes. The sportier the car and the faster it would go, the better it was. Those who were really into automobiles, the type who idolized Richard Petty, were termed Gearheads. Local Chapter #454 dominated St Charles High in the racing field. Gearheads' Friday and Saturday nights were centered around finding whose car was the fastest.

But among the Camaros, GTO's, and other cars that many students termed as "strictly race," were the Novas, Volkswagons, and family cars that other students drove to school — just for the convenience of having their own transportation.

Co-ed P.E., both sexes?

Students at STC had yet another change to adjust to this year — P.E. classes shared with members of the opposite sex. Girls were introduced to calisthenics for the first time. In the Co-ed classes, everyone was expected to do push-ups, burpies, belly slappers.

Integrated swimming classes often brought embarrassment to the girls who were forced to wear one of "those" swimming suits in front of the guys. While the girls' swimming "uniforms" were not ignored by the males in the classes, the feeling they seemed to have had about swimming with the girls (in suits!) could only be described as far from embarrassing.

STC students faced many changes and a few awkward situations with the newly-founded program, but the boys seemed to suffer the most — at least they seemed to complain the loudest. With girls now in P.E., they could no longer play the contact sports they had previously enjoyed, such as football and wrestling. However, for both the girls and guys the competition was drastically different from what they had been used to.

Five Conference championships, a brand new trophy case full of awards, and the beginning of many orange and black banners in the gym were a few of the athletic achievements in 1977-78.

Although the gym wasn't ready until late Oct., the facilities were well worth the wait. Will we ever forget the Warford, Brinkman, Garrison, Cudworth, and Liesman starting five on the basketball court, or a Saint score of 119 points? STC welcomed a new quarterback, Randy Wright, to our football team, and Todd Willing and Dave Wells wrestled their way down State. Twelve members of our track teams and tennis-player Todd Wendling also made the trip to State tournaments. Along with a regional championship baseball team, this was definitely the Year of the Athlete.

SPORTS

St. Charles cheerleaders let the spirit pour

This past summer, the Varsity squad attended the Golden Eagle cheerleading camp in Normal, Ill. They received the top award given for spirit, participation, and achievement in skills

Gray clouds hovered over most of St Charles' outdoor sports events this year. Even though the sun wasn't shining, the cheerleaders brightened the crowds with a new addition to the squad. "Bridget the Midget" brought new laughter and enthusiasm from the stands as she led cheers and did dance routines. Upper left, top row: Sophomore Squad; Janet Jordan, Laura Liesman. Bottom row; Betsy Station, Patty McLaughlin (captain), Char Blair, Molly Ruff. Upper right: Darcy Brown and Laura Liesman burst with energy at the outdoor homecoming assembly. Middle row: The Individual Squad; Diane Olson (captain), Vicki Liljehorn, Lu Veino, Robyn Burger, Heidi Babel, and Elyce Webb. Bottom row: The weather can't dampen Heidi Babel's spirits as rain falls at a cross country meet this fall

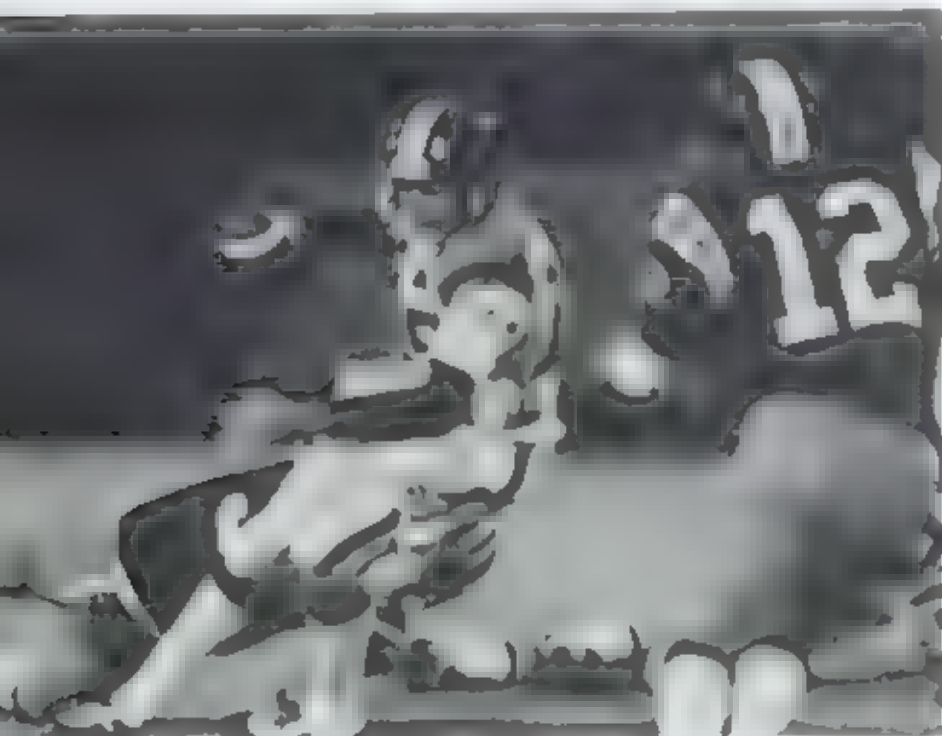

Saints battle through up and down year

(Right), Steve Biddle, (37), looks on as a teammate brings down a DeKalb running back in the Saints' season finale win. (Below), Defensive captain Mark Schingen carefully studies the signals flashed to him from the sidelines

(Below), Quarterback Randy Wright, an Upstate Eight all-conference selection, feels a DeKalb lineman tugging at his jersey (Far below) Tony Grossklag rambles past the defense on a sweep against Larkin

St. Charles' football team provided fans with last-second losses and thrilling victories during the course of its 4-5 overall 1977 season. St. Charles suffered two consecutive Upstate Eight Conference defeats at Elgin, losing to state-ranked Elgin 28-21 in the last two minutes, and Elgin Larkin 25-21 in the final 34 seconds. Closing out their tough year with a 14-12 victory over the DeKalb Barbs, the Saints ended up tied for third place in the UEC with DeKalb and West Aurora, all three of which possessed 2-3 records. Four Saints were named to the Upstate Eight all-conference team. The four were Randy Wright, a junior quarterback, Dennis Warford, a senior wide receiver, Joe Ringhofer, a junior defensive lineman, and Mike McCurdy, a senior center

A winning but rainy Homecoming

St. Charles defeated Upstate Eight Conference foe East Aurora 16-0 Homecoming night October 7 in a steady rain at Reid Field. Running back Todd Willing topped all runners with 98 yards on 23 carries to lead St. Charles' ground attack of 270 yards. Willing scored the first touchdown on a one-yard plunge that was followed by quarterback Randy Wright's four-yard touchdown run. Kicker Mark Grossklag made a 22-yard field goal to account for the Saints' final three points

Clockwise from right Ray Foster, (61), tries to help out as three Saints tackle an East Aurora runner. Senior Mark Schingen, a defensive captain and middle linebacker, greets a Tom-cat runner with a crunching tackle. Two referees signal a touchdown for St. Charles on Todd Willing's one-yard score. Mark Schingen gives instructions to his defensive team in a Homecoming game that was played in a steady rain

Sophs, frosh enjoy good seasons

Coach Trent Richards saw his varsity, junior varsity, and sophomore runners each turn in remarkable seasons for the 1977 campaign. The Saints' varsity squad finished with a 9-3 dual record, while finishing first in the Kane County meet, second in the Upstate Eight Conference meet, first in the Plainfield Invitational, third in the Dixon Invitational, fourth in the district meet, and finally sixth in the sectional meet. St. Charles' sophomores, meanwhile, completed the season with a 9-3 dual mark, a 5-0 first-place finish, and a second-place showing at the Kane County meet. The JV runners ended up with a UEC title and a second-place finish at the Kane County meet. Jeff Wheaton was named the Saints' most valuable varsity runner, while Evan Clarrissimeaux received most valuable from the sophomore squad. Wheaton finished fourth out of the pack in the UEC meet, with Doug Jones right behind in fifth place. Jones had a spectacular ninth-place showing at the district meet.

It turned out to be a long season for the St. Charles varsity and JV volleyball teams. Under the first-year direction of varsity coach Bonny Hajek and JV coach Rebecca Hankin, the spikers abruptly dropped six straight games before beating rival Geneva. The Saints' varsity triumphed 20-13 and 20-13, while the JV's rallied to win 20-8 and 20-9. However, the Saints' varsity squad ended the year with an 0-10 Upstate Eight Conference record and a 1-16 overall mark. The JV's were a little better, finishing 0-10 in the UEC and 2-15 overall. St. Charles lost to Wheaton North 20-7 and 20-6 at the Wheaton-Warrenville sub-sectional to complete its rough season. The seniors who proudly ended their careers at St. Charles included Debbie Bednarz, Beth Janas, Re Matalonis, Julie Payne, and Molly Peddy.

Girls' tennis takes 4th in conference

Although completing the season 4-3-1 overall, the girls' tennis team ended up with a 1-3-1 record and 18½ points in the Upstate Eight

Conference for fourth place behind champion West Aurora with 45 points. The first doubles team of Damaris Sufalko and Sue Sanborn captured fourth place in the UEC meet while first singles player Caroline Carlson was eliminated in the second round. Carlson, however, took first in first singles action earlier in the season at the St. Charles Invitational. Golfers suffer dismal season

St. Charles' varsity golf team finished the year with a 2-3 Upstate Eight Conference record and a 4-6 overall mark. The varsity placed second in the UEC meet at Englewood but ended up in third place overall in the conference standings. Mel Mzhickteno carded a 77 for St. Charles in the conference meet, completing the course for a second-place finish. At the Lake Park Invitational, St. Charles captured 10th place out of 18 teams as Steve Rosene brought home a 14th-place trophy. St. Charles closed out the season by taking 10th place in the district meet. The sophomores, on the other hand, had an up and down season. Although ending up 7-3 for the season, the sophs finished 2-3 in the UEC, fourth place in the conference meet, and third place overall in the UEC standings.

Saints in the swim make the most of the season

Amidst pull-bouys, kickboards, required morning practices, weight lifting, and quality workouts, the Saint swimmers had a successful season. A 5-0 conference record led the girls swim team, under Coach Bob Teichart, Assistant Coach Dave Bart, and Diving Coach Bonnie Hajek, into the Upstate Eight Conference swim meet only to be upset by the DeKalb Barbs and place second. You had to be a basketball fan to appreciate what Saints' coach Ron Johnson and Co. accomplished during the 1977-78 season at St. Charles. The Saints finished second in the St. Charles Thanksgiving basketball tournament after losing to East Aurora 92-87 in the championship game. Next, St. Charles captured its second straight DeKalb Christmas tournament with a 58-43 victory over Sycamore in the title game. Rick Garrison, UEC scoring champion and a 6-3 senior forward, Phil Brinkman, a 6-2 senior guard, and Dennis Warford, a 6-2 senior forward, were selected to the Upstate Eight all-conference first-team. Senior guard Mike Liesman and junior center Greg Cudworth were named honorable mention. St. Charles won the Larkin Regional tournament by defeating Sycamore 67-46. But, the Saints were knocked out of a chance to go downstate and the Elgin Sectional tournament, as well, with a loss to Barrington 61-58. Overall, however, the Saints established the most wins in St. Charles' history by finishing 25-4 to cap a successful season that may never happen again.

Again we are sorry for the inconvenience.

The Saints' sophomores went through a disappointing season under head coach Chuck Rachow, although the team did win two tournaments. Dan Krasinski and Stan Bednarz led the way in the Saints' 47-28 victory over Immaculate Conception in the title game of the Wheaton-Warrenville Thanksgiving tournament. The sophs also won their own eight-team Christmas tournament with a 61-58 victory over Larkin for the championship. But, the sophs completed the season with a 1-9 UEC record after playing well the first half of the season.

Wrestlers finally capture Upstate Eight title

The St. Charles varsity wrestling squad did something February 3 at West Aurora High School which had never been done before. Five Saint wrestlers brought back Upstate Eight Conference titles in leading St. Charles to its first-ever conference title. The five individual champions were Shawn Thornton at 105 pounds, Ron Brown (112), Rick Wilderspin (132), Dave Wells (138), and Tim Beebe, (heavyweight). Bill Berg (155) and DeWayne DeBerry (167) placed second and third, respectively, for St. Charles, while Todd Griffiths (126) and Steve Biddle (185) each finished fourth. Under head coach Fred Bruder and JV coach Chuck Robinson, St. Charles swept past perennial UEC champion DeKalb by an impressive margin of 155½ points to the Barbs' 129.

St. Charles sent five wrestlers to the DeKalb Sectional tournament, after taking second place at the district meet with 98 points to champion Addison Trail's 147½. The Saints finished fourth at DeKalb with 30½ points, behind the 50½ points by the champions from Addison Trail again. Dave Wells survived the sectional meet by taking first at 138 pounds, while Willing ended up second at 145. Although Willing didn't place at the state tournament held at Champagne-Urbana, Wells did finish fifth. St. Charles closed out the regular season with a first-ever 5-0 dual meet mark in the UEC which was helped by the Saints breaking DeKalb's dual meet winning mark of 66.

St. Charles' sophomores concluded the season by finishing fourth behind champion East Aurora in the conference meet. Saints John Doba (145), Odell DeBerry (155), Dean Reader (167), and Greg Ninkovich (heavyweight) placed second. The sophomores placed third at the eight-team Hinsdale South Invitational with DeBerry being the only champion for the Saints. The St. Charles freshmen wrestlers captured the six-team Batavia Invitational. Saints basketball: the gals

Some of the girls' basketball team's lack of popularity stems from the better and faster boy's teams. Although both girls' teams finished deceptively low in the conference, the team ended the season with an overall record of 12-12. The 77-78 varsity squad, coached by Mary Fasbender, was bounced out of the state race when they lost the regional title to Rochelle. But, their record is misleading, for as coach "Fas" remarked, "There were four games in which we lost by only 1 or 2 points, and if we had won . . ." Leaving the varsity squad at the end of the year were six seniors, Sue Pope, Re Matalonis, Molly Peddy, Kathy Lyle, Deb Bednarz, and Heidi Babel. Although four of these six were starters, next year will bring back juniors Caroline Carlson, Angie Mabry and sophomore Cristy Carlson. Of these players, Sue Pope and Re Matalonis were voted on the All-Conference Team, while Molly Peddy and Caroline Carlson were given honorable mention. The Saints had more players voted to this team than any other. The JV team ended the year at 9-10.

Girls' bowling team ranks 11th in state finals

The girls' bowling team was off to a good start with four returning bowlers from last year, seniors Ann DeVilbiss, Colleen Potter, and juniors Stephanie Robinson, and Jeanette Yowler. The varsity squad had a good season with 23½ wins to 18½ losses. The junior varsity squad ended their season with 20 wins and 22 losses. St. Charles hosted the 1978 District Competition in which the Saints took first place enabling them to go into state competition. Eight girls were selected from the team of 14 to go down state. Coach Karen Anderson, Girls' Athletic director Sheila Aicher, and Mrs. Pat Potter accompanied the girls on their trip to Peoria. St. Charles was ranked 11th out of 25 teams after two rounds of competition. Ann DeVilbiss scored a high game of 209, and Colleen Potter had a high series of 551. What's in the air? A birdie!

Badminton has become an increasingly popular girls' competitive sport with a conference schedule and tournament. Last year the girls finished second in conference with the doubles team placing first in the meet. The 1978 Saints badminton team ended this season with a record of 6-5. Coach Bonny Hajek, who was in her first year coaching the team, brought the 1978 squad to a fourth place finish in both the conference and district meets. This year's team was very young with only five returning players. Senior Kathy Martin, Juniors Cindy Bolger, Kay Hubble, Cheryl Brewer, and Sophomore Laura Huntley. Even though the team as a whole finished fourth in the conference, a fourth place in districts meant a lot more. With this team next year the Saints will have a more experienced squad and are looking toward bigger and better advances.

Tennis team ends year with new hope

The '77-'78 season for the Boys' tennis team was a trial and error season. The Varsity team ended up with a season record of 2 wins, 10 loses. A stand-out on the varsity team was Todd Wendling, junior. He played first singles and had an individual record of 19-9. He finished second in the district meet at Lake Park and qualified for state competition. The varsity team was young this year, it was comprised of 5 juniors and 2 sophomores. The varsity finished fifth in conference. On the sophomore level, the team finished second in conference with a 7-5 record. The sophomores had four sophomores and five freshman on the team. Playing first singles was John Martin, sophomore. He finished with a 9-3 record for the season. Two conference winning sophomores, Tom Landgraf and Ray Johns finished second and third respectively in the conference meet. The doubles team of Nick Marchi and Doug Stevens had a 8-4 record and took second in the conference tournament. The Saints tennis teams participated in several tournaments during the year, including the Addison-Trail and Oswego. Both the varsity and sophomore teams are coached by Dan Hall.

Saint nine miss by one

St. Charles' varsity baseball squad established a record for most wins ever by going 21-4 for the season under the direction of head coach Wayne DeMaar. The Saint nine, in addition to sweeping all six non-conference games and capturing the Upstate Eight Conference championship with an 11-4 mark, brought home the Plainfield Regional title and a second-place finish at the Lockport Sectional. With a state playoff berth on the line, the Saints dropped an 11-2 decision to Joliet West in the Lockport Sectional championship game to miss by one game of having the chance to go to Peoria for the state playoffs. Seniors Dan Gierke (shortstop), Steve Rosene (center field), Dennis Warford (third base) and Brad Wickersham (pitcher) were named unanimously to the UEC all-conference team. Warford (.333), second baseman Mike Liesman (.303) and left fielder Mark Grossklag (.299) were among the regulars in leading the Saints in hitting. Rosene topped the team in doubles with six, while Warford swatted a club-leading two home runs. Liesman batted in 17 runs and Warford swiped 24 bases for other team leaderships. Wickersham and Brinkman carried the pitching staff with seven wins apiece, while senior Greg O'Berry added five victories. Wickersham wound up with a 1.22 earned run average and 66 strikeouts in 62 innings pitched.

Track Team strides to success

The unfinished track still didn't stop the team from making the 1978 season one of the best. Finishing 2nd in the Kane county Championships and being undefeated in dual conference was just part of the Saints successful season. They also were 2nd in indoor season, 2nd in NIU indoors, and won the Fox Valley relays. The following nine qualified for State; Jeff Wheaton, Tony Grossklag, Randy Wright, Tom Clarke, Mike Petersen, Grant Harshbargar, Mike Stahulek, Bill Arloff, and Mike Sparacino. Saints ended placing ninth in state.

Girls' track team — Upstate eight champions of '78

(Right) Two-milers got plenty of encouragement from fellow teammates as they passed by the St. Charles bleachers. Deb Bednarz keeps a steady pace in front of a West Aurora two-miler as her fellow tracksters boost her confidence. (Below) The gun fires, and as the cheering from the St. Charles peanut gallery begins, senior Beth Janas bursts out of her starting block with tremendous speed. Janas took second in the 100-yard run at the East Aurora meet.

OUTSTANDING is the one word that describes the girls' track team of 1978. With a team record of 9-0 for the season, the girls made it all the way to Upstate Eight Conference, where they made a clean sweep and placed first. This year was quite memorable for the team. The coaching of Ms. Barbara Luckinbill, Ms. Phyllis Swin, and Ms. Laura Sharer, made it a memorable one with their "practice makes perfect" motto and their invigorating windsprints (windsprints are an unforgettable experience — it's good for the lungs). But it all paid off for the team and coaches; they reached their goal of a perfect season.

There must have been a club or organization started for all of the many different kinds of people at STC! Key

Club put together a calendar of school-year activities, AFS provided new friends from other places, and Pep Club brightened up those long hallways. Co-op, FFA, and Interact became more well known as the year went on, and Powder Keg and

Round-About provided all the entertainment. Each group held moneyraisers such as bake sales and there were "headquarters" for all sales in the Student Activity Booth. Student

Congress had many adjustment complaints in our new home and trips with National Honor Society, Chess Club, and X-Ray provided a little "getaway" from school. Clubs were a chance to break out of the routine

Freshmen join orchestra ranks

The addition of freshmen was the main reason for a larger orchestra this year. Almost one third of the members were from the class of '81. Practices on the small Dunham stage started off the year, until the choir/orchestra room was completed. The musicians performed at fall, Christmas, winter and spring concerts, for St. Charles Women's Club, the musical 'Fiddler on the Roof', dedication of the Dellora A. Norris Cultural Arts Center, and baccalaureate. The orchestra went to hear the Chicago Symphony. Participating in the Fox Valley Music Festival were eighteen of the members.

Aiding Mrs. Jean Grotberg with directing duties was Miss Lynda DeBeir, student director, who graduated from St. Charles class of '74. She is a trumpet major at Northern Illinois University.

Band comes alive in new surroundings

Despite a somewhat slow start, concert band pulled together and gave some outstanding concerts. Freshman band got its start this year performing at Homecoming and the Marching Band concert. The spring concert was the highlight of the year with both bands performing in the new Cultural Arts Center. One of the more daring feats accomplished by the band was to test out the new hydrolic orchestra pit's lifting power.

Marching Saints suffer wet year

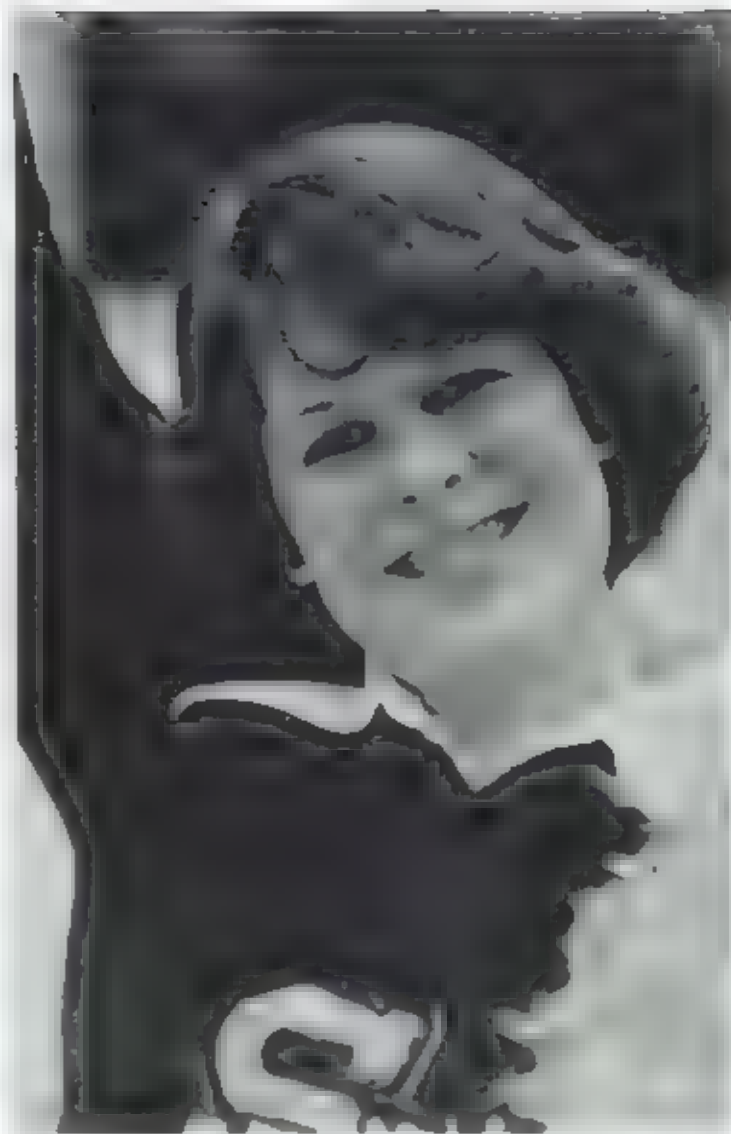

We now direct your attention to the north end of the field as we present the 77-78 edition of the St. Charles High School Marching Band under the direction of Jeff Childs.

Muddy practices, rained-on games and lack of a band room could not dull the spirit of the Marching Saints. Despite half-time downpours, the faithful band members attended all the games and occasionally outnumbered the fans.

However, things turned around when the Saints revived the tradition of the marching band concert. Lots of band boosters crowded into Dunham gym for the concert November 15. The Flags (Childs' Chicks), Twirlers and Drill Team joined the Marching Saints and the newly formed Freshman Marching Band.

During the marching season, the band traveled to Northwestern University to attend Band Day, September 24. Bands from all over the state attend each year to see a special NU Wildcat Marching Band show and a Big 10 football game. Although the game proved disappointing to Wildcat fans, the trip is usually one of the high points of the year.

"Put that Panasonic tape recorder out of its misery!" was the complaint of several Drill Team watchers about the use of taped music at games. But, despite muffled lyrics and missed beginnings, the 24 girls did their best to entertain fans at home games and pep assemblies. The drill team members kept the spirit at STC running high even through worrying over last minute practices and "who gets to face the players at the assembly?" arguments.

The Drill Team found extra time to help Key Club with its annual Christmas party for the students at the Mades-Johnston Center for the mentally handicapped. The girls also sold M&Ms to students to help buy new props and more uniforms.

Summer camps proved both fun and profitable for the girls as two first place awards, four second places, and a special ribbon for spirit and enthusiasm were won. This spirit carried right on through the year to enable the girls to win the fourth place trophy at the Downers Grove North invitational competition.

Drill Team was led this year by Brenda Clark, captain, and co-captain Carrie Cromwell. Ms. Diana Sandberg, adviser, also gave the necessary guidance and even proved she could still "do it" by joining the squad in the pep assembly performance of "Sweet Georgia Brown," the Globetrotter's theme for which they used basketballs.

Tunes rock at STC

STC students found themselves rocking to the beat of the Pep Band. Led by Mr. Jeff Childs, the band filled the gym with music during basketball games and pep assemblies. After the roar of the crowd quieted when sporting events were over, serious-minded musicians joined Jazz Band I, better known as "The Jazz Workshop." The workshop entertained students during lunch hours with their award-winning music. Behind Jazz Band I was Jazz Band II, who practiced weekly in this, their first year of existence at STC. In the climax of their performances, Jazz Band II "warmed up the audience" for the Jazz Workshop with songs like "Clean It Up," and "I've Been Searchin' So Long". The highlight of the concert was a dual solo by drummer, Todd Moffett, and saxophonist, Steve Darflinger, during the song "Fox Fire." Vocalists for the Workshop were Mary Angerer and Dave Hunt, while Jill Childs and Jane Wray sang for Jazz Band II. Both of the Jazz Bands were under the direction of Jeff Childs

National Honor Society is still going strong

NHS (National Honor Society) had activities helping the administration and citizens of St. Charles. The main event was giving tours of the new school when an open house was held for the public. NHS also provided help for the "Back to School Night." A special committee was organized consisting of teachers, advisors, and a few NHS members to revise the standards for membership induction into NHS.

NHS enjoyed two field trips to Chicago, which included two plays "Pippin" and "Godspell." The viewing of the Art Institute and the Chicago Board of Trade were of much interest. In the spring, a bake sale was held to raise money for the end of the year picnic.

Language clubs combine culture, conjugations

Spanish Club was active this year in many areas. The float the club members built won first prize in the Homecoming competition. They all went to an authentic Mexican dinner at advisor Dr. Carol Bannon's house, and a bake sale, then fell into stride to raise money for the play "Man of La Mancha" at the Arie Crown Theatre in Chicago. Many "otras cosas asi" were also completed. Officers for this year were President Peggy Diliberti, Vice President Cindy Bolger, Secretary Jeff Cassens, and Treasurer Julie Payne

The French Club participated in numerous activities this year including eating lunch in downtown Chicago, of course at a French restaurant, and then attending a French play "St. Joan." Another play done completely in French was "The Bald Soprano" which the club also attended at Northwestern. The French Club sponsored several bake sales to raise money and even entertained a French girl for one day.

Career help offered by three STC clubs

FFA (Future Farmers of America), involves a 4-year agricultural program at the high school and a club with members up to 21 years old. What makes the FFA members want to stay involved after they're out of high school? FFA is a very strong national organization. For the very first time, the group tested corn plots this year. Presently, the Chamber of Commerce invited them to a dinner where they received a number of plaques. In order to better their program, Advisor William Marshall is hoping to install a greenhouse at the high school. Wide horizons in agriculture and veterinary medicine are spread out for the FFA members after they're finished with high school.

Despite not having many members this year, the Health Careers club still held meetings and showed their own interests. They got information in different areas of the health field and each member worked with their own abilities. Seated; Ron Hillier, Jacki Fiene. Standing; Cheryl Reader, Melanie Pieper, Sheila Jones, Nurse Mary Mills.

Co-op students learn and work

Over 200 students participated in the co-operative education program (co-op) this year. According to Mr. Bernie Looney, co-op advisor, students who participate in this program are given a head start in the world of work.

Members must also belong to one of the three related co-op clubs, the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA), the Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA), or the Office Education Association (OEA). These clubs are not only on the local level, they are part of state and national organizations. VICA was the largest club this year, having 125 members.

The highlight of the year was the employer appreciation banquet held at the Gaslight Manor in Aurora. Students sold over $12,000 in oranges and grapefruits earlier in the year to pay for it. The highlight of that evening was when senior Randy Johnsen was named co-op student of the year.

Congress helps out as students adjust

Student Congress, led by Speaker Judy Donnelly, had a rough time helping students adjust to their new surroundings. A student advisory committee, consisting of the class officers and the officers of Student Congress, was formed to talk to administrators so that some of the student problems could be solved. A Candy Cane and Valentines Secret Admirers' Day were special events sponsored by Student Congress, along with a Computer Dance, the All-Star Student-Faculty Basketball Game and the selling of STC jackets. The week of Homecoming had Student Congress sponsoring activities including the parade, dressup days, voting for the Queen, and the Homecoming Dance.

STC clubs take root in new surroundings

There was a lot of spirit and pep to be distributed this year at the high school, and the Pep club played an important part in spreading it around.

The girls' sold key chains and had numerous bake sales. With the money they earned, they bought orange & black sweaters.

This year's pep assemblies that were sponsored by the Pep Club and the cheerleaders, were attended by all and lots of fun. This year's Pep Club members are above: (row one) Laura Garbacz, Kathy Jackson, Jenny Jackman, Sonia Benzschawel, Lucinda Cole, Eileen Toohill, Cheryl Callahan, (row two) Kim Galitz, Diane Boyce, Denise Kenton, Demaris Sufalko, Dorothy Chomiez, Michelle Turner, Bonnie Harris, (row three) Paige Reynolds, Lonna Ruttman, Diane Klein, Sheila Sills, Laura Hallin, Patty Johnson, Sheila Jones, Kathy Martin, Lynn Catchpole (president), Carol Monteleone (sec/treasurer), and absent Pam Maren (vice-president).

"Lift those fingers! Get those knuckles up!" These are just a few of the warm-up exercises for the STC Chess Club. Despite lack of cheerleaders and large crowds, the club ended the season with a winning record. Lead by "coach" Dawn Anderson the club's record of 5-1 was good enough to capture second place in the conference. At left; the chess team consisted of (row one) Mike Bollero, vice president, Ned Corron, Gary Nussbaum, Mike Kelly. (Second row) Coach Miss Dawn Anderson, Jim Solner, president; Martin Schmidt, and Jim Pierce.

Campus life is a Christian-oriented group of high school and college students. Through the use of insight and understanding, the club gets to know each other and themselves with a more positive attitude toward their life with Christ. Al and Judy Arvidson, the leaders of the group, form several different activities to get the students interested, such as picnics, bowling and roller-skating parties, burgerbashes, 10-foot long banana splits, and even a Gong Show contest! Campus Life teaches a student to be more than what he expects to be both inside and outside of the soul.

Saints skate to first place

X-Ray settles in to new room, same old chaos

Once in a new school, the X-ray made some new starts, too. Layout people started going wild with border tape and things started turning up — reversed out, (including some front-page cutlines — which were a surprise to the entire staff.) A video-taped television show that was shown in the Resource Center was started this year with some of the center's new equipment and last year's typeset cabinets were left behind at Thompson. Unoccupied staff members put their graffiti on a wall instead. The larger space inspired enough incentive to hatch some really unique word combinations. Although the staff moved into a brand-new workroom with (at last!) big-enough desks, the same shortages of x-acto knives and working typewriters proved enough of a strain to send Ma Perkins under her desk. But in spite of the problems, the staff showed no shortage of hard work as the X-ray received three certificates of merit at NISPA and an All-American rating from NSPA, ranking X-ray among the top 20 large high school newspapers in the country.

HALO staff works as one to make our memories last

Picas, cropping "L's", layout sheets, DEADLINES, and Room 216, all a part of a HALO staff member's life. Putting together a yearbook this year was quite a task with the opening of a new school and all the problems that go with it. Editor-in-Chief Jody Donnelly had a lot of these problems to cope with this year. By the time things finally settled, the HALO staff had things well under way. The theme of "Beginnings" was well chosen in a year that brought new beginnings to all of us. One of the new aspects of the book this year was the fact that it was 240 pages, the largest yearbook ever at STC. Along with one of the largest books comes an extremely large staff of 35 people. With that many people there were bound to be problems and of course there were. The biggest of these problems were the photographers and all the mix-ups on where they were supposed to be as well as when. A few times no one on the staff covered an event and we ended up hunting down someone who had been seen taking pictures there. There were lost negatives that were never found until just before the deadline or right after they had been retaken, and of course there was the usual "Deadline Madness" when many staff members could be found staying up into the early hours of the morning on the day before the deadline, frantically trying to finish their spreads.

Despite all of these problems, the final deadline was made and on June 17, 1978, the book was finally on its way to the publishers, and the staff's part was done, for this year.

Spring led to restlessness and daydreams of being outdoors!

Cars jammed full of students poured out of the parking lots after school with the windows down and the radios blasting. Study halls could be used as a chance to sit on the front lawns and "catch some rays" as long as the black flag wasn't up. Everyone seemed to have a premature attack of senioritis, and seniors were the worst off, of course, with each day bringing them closer to graduation and "freedom." Baseball and track became the star attractions and most thoughts turned to June and the Prom. As the year drew to a close, so ended much of the first-year confusion. STC has only just begun, to live
